U.S. Planes Bomb Laos

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—North Vietnamese and Pathet Lao forces are moving in on the Plain of Jars but U.S. flyers are making sure that they pay for their gains.

More than 400 American fighter-bombers zeroed in on eastern Laos on Sunday in some of the heaviest air raids ever flown in Southeast Asia. Sources said Monday that government troops still held the Plain of Jars airfield and the strategic town of Xieng Khuang on the southeastern part of the plain, but the enemy was reported making progress elsewhere.

Some of the raids were flown in support of Laotian government troops fighting the advancing enemy. Others were directed at the Ho Chi Minh trail farther east, a main corridor for the movement of North Vietnamese and supplies into South Vietnam.

Sources in Saigon said the planes came from two 7th Fleet carriers in the Gulf of Tonkin and half a dozen bases in Thailand and South Vietnam. Most were F4 Phantom and F105 Thunderchief fighter-bombers, which carry 10,000-15,000 pounds of bombs each.

Strategic Air Command B52 bombers, which carry four to six times as many bombs, hit North Vietnamese supply depots in eastern Laos. Other planes pounded enemy troops, trucks and supply lines. Several B52 missions were reported along the border between Laos and South Vietnam.

Sources in Vientiane said one propeller-driven A1E Skyraider was shot down over the Plain of Jars. Its pilot, an American, was presumed killed.

Laotian government forces took the plain last summer in one of the biggest victories of their continuing war with the Communist-led Pathet Lao. Laotian officials predicted late last month that the enemy would begin a campaign this week to recapture it.

Western observers said Monday that the government forces apparently were withdrawing to the western rim of the plain to consolidate their small outposts and organize better defenses against the enemy's advance.

Recent weather has been favorable for air support. The Plain of Jars, so named because of the ancient funeral jars buried there, is a high plateau about 50 miles long and 20 miles wide. It provides access to both North and South Vietnam and forms a buffer zone between the government-held territory to the south and areas held by the pathet Lao to the north.

The plain is about 100 miles north of the capital, Vientiane. It is no secret that both the Pathet Lao and their allies, the North Vietnamese, would like to get the plain back. But U.S. officials have advised Prince Souvanna Phouma's Laotian forces not to try to hold it in the face of a strong enemy offensive.

American officials feel the political value of the plain is more symbolic than real and believe the government would have little chance of winning a major battle there. Even if it did, they say, it would suffer more casualties than the plain is worth.

Deny Trial Site Change

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A judge said Monday that publicity about the Sharon Tate murders would not make it impossible for Charles Manson to get a fair trial here. He denied a request to change the trial site.

Manson, 35, leader of a band of nomadic hippies types, and five of his followers are charged with murder and conspiracy in the slayings of Miss Tate and six others.

When Manson came to court to request that the trial be moved to another area, Superior Court Judge Malcolm M. Lucas said: "The court finds that there is not a reasonable likelihood that a fair trial cannot be had."

"The court finds that there has been extensive and pervasive publicity concerning the defendant Manson ... in every county in the state if not throughout the nation," Lucas said.

Thus a change of venue would be "ineffective," he added.

In making the rulings, Lucas repeatedly cited the Reardon Report of the American Bar Association concerning publicity of court cases and noted that it suggests delay of trials in cases where publicity might die down in time.

The judge said: "It is the court's belief that a continuance in this matter would be ineffective because of public interest in the case. There would only be a revival of publicity."

Manson said he wanted to exercise his right to a speedy trial and would not seek a delay.

Manson, hunched over the counsel table, his shaggy hair falling around his face, told the judge: "The papers have really done a thing on this, more than anything that's ever come up, even on the guy that killed the president of the United States ... To me it's becoming a joke, but a joke that may cost me my life."

Safety Questioned

Pill Sales Unchanged

NEW YORK (AP)—Drug-pharmacy. The pill usually comes in batches for a month or more.

"We've had no decline ... but people have been asking whether or not the pill is safe," said a Little Rock, Ark., pharmacist in a typical comment.

Some druggists reported a decline in new prescriptions for the pill since the subcommittee hearings. But they said most women who were taking the pill before the hearings continued to refill their prescriptions.

The pill was named at the hearings as a possible factor in blood clots, cancer, heart disease and other ailments. Robert H. Finch, secretary of health, education and welfare, advised doctors to alert women to possible risks but he also cautioned against "over reacting."

On Sunday Surgeon General Jesse Steinfeld said a growing amount of evidence would indicate other forms of contraception would be safer for some women.

However, he said, "I think the pill has saved more lives than it has cost."

To some women, he indicated, the possible risk of taking the pill may be less than complications such as miscarriages and hemorrhages.

Some doctors say they have noticed an increase in unwanted pregnancies which they attrib-

JURY DELIBERATES — U.S. District court Judge Julius J. Hoffman (LR) sent the marathon riot conspiracy trial of the "Chicago seven" to the jury Saturday. U.S. Attorney Thomas A. Notice Of Appeal Filed By Lawyers

CHICAGO (AP)—Seven men remained jailed on contempt charges Monday while a U.S. District Court jury deliberated for the third day on whether they conspired to incite riots during the 1968 Democratic National Convention.

The jury retired from its deliberations Monday at 5:30 p.m. Federal marshals gave no reason for the early end to the day's deliberations.

The jury decides its own hours. Although the judge said last week he hoped the jurors would deliberate until 10 p.m. each night, they are under no obligation to do so.

Thomas P. Sullivan, a Chicago lawyer, filed with the U.S. 7th Circuit Court of Appeals Monday a notice of appeal on the contempt judgments levied Saturday and Sunday by Judge

Julius J. Hoffman, against the defendants and their legal counsel. Sullivan said the action is aimed at getting the defendants free on bond pending the appeals proceedings which were expected to be lengthy. He said an extensive brief will be filed with the appeals court Thursday.

Sentences for the defendants ranged from 2½ months to 2½ years. Defense Lawyer William M. Kunstler was sentenced to four years and 13 days in prison for his colleague, Leonard I. Weinglass, was sentenced to 20 months and five days.

Kunstler and Weinglass, whose commitments were stayed by the judge until May 4, visited their clients in the federal tier of the Cook County—Chicago—Jail. Judge Hoffman denied motions to allow the seven men bond while appeals are pending.

The lawyers told newsmen they obtained from federal authorities permission for Lee Weiner, 31, to leave jail for two hours to visit his mother, who was reported to be in "very guarded" condition in a hospital. The hospital reported some improvement since Sunday.

Mrs. Ruth Weiner, 54, his mother, was reported in a coma. She was admitted to a hospital late Sunday and treated for an overdose of drugs. She and her husband, Herman, were in U.S. District Court Sunday when the judge ordered their son jailed for two months and 18 days on seven counts of contempt.

The failure of the jury of 10 women and two men to reach a decision prompted speculation that a verdict, if one is reached, may be mixed and complicated.

Judge Hoffman told newsmen last week that he intended, if necessary, to charge the jury a second time in an effort to have it reach a verdict in the five-month trial.

In determining the length of the contempt sentences, Judge Hoffman set penalties ranging from one day to six months on each contempt count.

Besides Weiner the defendants and their sentences are: David T. Dellinger, 54, sentenced to 29 months and 16 days on 32 counts.

Rennard C. Davis, 29, sentenced to 25 months and five days on 23 counts.

Jerry C. Rubin, 31, sentenced to 25 months and 23 days on 15 counts.

Abbott Hoffman, 31, sentenced to eight months on 23 counts.

John R. Froines, 31, sentenced to six months and 15 days on 10 counts.

Thomas E. Hayden, 30, sentenced to 14 months and 14 days on 11 counts.

Demonstrations broke out in New York and Berkeley, Calif., Monday in protest against the contempt of court sentences given to the seven defendants and their lawyers.

More than 2,000 persons, throwing rocks, wood, bottles and chunks of ice, tried to rush the Criminal Court building in New York where 12 Black Panthers were having a pretrial hearing.

The demonstration was broken up by helmeted police armed with clubs.

In Berkeley, yelling demonstrators surged through downtown streets smashing store and office windows and scuffling with police.

Reasons Secret Drop Spy Charges

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP)—Spy charges against a Russian translator for the United Nations were dropped Monday at the request of the State Department on the condition that the accused man, Aleksandr V. Tikhomirov, leave the country by Tuesday.

U.S. Atty. Stan Pitkin said the charges were dropped "in the best interest of the foreign policy of the U.S. government." He refused to elaborate.

The order dismissing the charges was signed by U.S. Commissioner Walter A. Reseburg Jr. Only Pitkin, Reseburg and Murray B. Guterson, Tikhomirov's Seattle attorney, attended the court hearing. Guterson said Tikhomirov, who is free on bail, was in New York.

"I have no idea why the government dropped the charges," Guterson said. "My own belief is the government thought it sensible not to go to trial where it would be necessary to indicate what information Tikhomirov was charged with wanting." Guterson said both Tikhomirov and the Soviet government still maintain the translator is innocent of any espionage charges.

State Department press officer Carl Barich said in Washington Monday there was "no deal or understanding" with the Soviet government on Tikhomirov's release. Barich said the decision was made because of restraint on the part of the Soviet government in recent years in handling Americans arrested in the Soviet Union.

Tikhomirov, 37, was arrested by the FBI on a Seattle street Feb. 7 and charged with conspiracy to commit espionage after an unidentified U.S. Air Force sergeant said he was paid $300 last December to obtain information in anti-aircraft and missile defenses in the Pacific Northwest. Tikhomirov was released Feb. 11 after the Russian Embassy in Washington posted $75,000 bail.

The FBI complaint against Tikhomirov said he conspired to obtain information in western Washington, southern New York and elsewhere between Jan. 4, 1969 and his arrest.

The order dismissing the charges said a preliminary hearing on them would be held as scheduled Thursday in Seattle if Tikhomirov did not leave Tuesday.

"My client has told me he intends to leave," Guterson said. "He feels it would be impossible to carry out his assignment with the United Nations because of the arrest and the publicity the case has received."

Pitkin said the decision to release the Russian was discussed with the departments of State and Justice, but he refused to comment on what secrets, if any, Tikhomirov might have obtained.

Fear Setback In Rogers' Position

WASHINGTON (AP)—Professional diplomats in the State Department were dismayed Monday at what appeared to be a setback for Secretary William P. Rogers at the hands of the White House.

Administration officials said that in fact there was no setback and that the canceling of a detailed Rogers study on foreign policy was personally agreed to by him.

The State Department paper—a country-by-country and issue-by-issue report on U.S. foreign relations originally was to have been issued in January as a posture statement taken over from the Defense Department as a symbol of the growing dominance of the State Department in foreign affairs in the Nixon administration.

Saturday the White House announced that President Nixon would cover in the single statement—his State of the World message to Congress Wednesday—the foreign and military issues that would have been handled separately by the State and Defense Departments.

The decision resolved uncertainty which had been building up in the State Department for the last month over what would happen to the projected Rogers statement in the light of Nixon's announcement before his State of the Union message that he intended to handle foreign policy separately in a subsequent message.

The reaction in the State Department Monday was that Rogers' position had suffered some kind of a blow. Officials at the working level said it appeared that a considerable amount of effort was being shelved and as one put it, "we noted with dismay that the secretary's posture statement has been pushed aside."

Rogers reportedly thought that his predecessor, Dean Rusk, had been unwise to let the Defense Department take the lead in such a way and reporting on major foreign-policy questions.

Rogers therefore put the State Department to work on a statement which was planned to cover two parts—first, a global summary by Rogers personally, running into some thousands of words, and second, a book-length study of issues and problems in every nation and area of the world.

In the thinking of State Department officials Rogers' initiative in taking over this report to Congress and the country became a symbol of his determination to build up the State Department and its role in policy-making and management.

So controversial are these provisions that some committee members speculated that Congress may never pass an appropriation bill for the current fiscal year. This year began last July 1, so the bill already is seven and a half months late. The departments involved have been operating under stopgap financing resolutions, the latest of which expires Feb. 28.

It includes also a clause specifically authorizing the President to adjust amounts actually spent—thus making the appro-

Students Rescue Oil-Soaked Birds

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—Hundreds of student volunteers struggled to save oil-soaked birds Monday as patches of a huge oil slick glistened along several miles of tourist beaches.

About 900 students from Florida Presbyterian College and faculty members voted to skip classes and spend the day at Lake Maggiore where an assemblyline was set up to clean half-dead grebes, ducks and pelicans with salad oil and corn meal.

Earl Faircloth, Florida attorney general, filed a $2 million suit in federal court against Shipping Developments Corp. of Panama. The firm owns the Greek registry tanker that leaked 10,000 gallons of oil into Tampa Bay Friday when it ran aground in a shipping channel.

U.S. marshals seized the tanker Delian Apollo at its berth on Weedon Island in Tampa Bay, and Faircloth said the ship would be auctioned off if necessary to get the money needed to restore beaches and waterfront property damaged by the slick.

Cmdr. Anthony Fugaro of the U.S. Coast Guard said Monday patches of the 100-square-mile slick escaped from Tampa Bay under the Sunshine Skyway Bridge and were drifting north in the Gulf of Mexico pushed along by tide and winds.

The oil had also penetrated Boca Ciega Bay between the mainland and island beach resorts.

Fugaro said it was too late to stop the spread of the oil, and said Coast Guard and city crews were concentrating on cleaning the oil up as it washed ashore in sticky masses.

"We're trying to spread slick-booms—a kind of upside-down floating fence—to prevent further damage, but it's just getting big," he said. "By the time we got the report of the spill and got boats out there with booms two hours had passed and we were already too late."

Groups of students and Boy Scouts waded along oily shorelines and prodded sticky black lumps that sometimes turned out to be exhausted birds.

The Federal Example

The federal government intends to set a good example of compliance with anti-pollution statutes. This is the chief import of President Nixon's executive order to federal agencies to eliminate air and water pollution in their facilities by the end of 1972.

Federal installations are by no means a negligible factor in creating dirty air and water. In a sense it is true, as Mr. Nixon declared, that the government is "one of the nation's worst polluters." Cleaning up this source of pollution will be an important step. The greater significance of the executive order lies, however, in its potential impact on industries and communities.

The fact that many politicians at all levels of government are boarding the anti-pollution bandwagon does not in itself guarantee adequate effective action. There has been an enormous amount of talk about the problem—the complex of problems, really—but comparatively little action. Allocation and expenditure of money has not matched the oratory. As Mr. Nixon's Democratic critics have been pointing out, this is true even in the federal government: there has been quite a lot of presidential rhetoric on the subject, but no lavish hand at the purse strings.

Whether or not Mr. Nixon has been stung by such criticism, the fact is that he has begun to act. The creation of an Environmental Quality Council, and in particular the choice of Russell Train to serve as its chairman, was a significant step whose beneficial effects will be increasingly felt. Now the President has said to federal agencies: Clean up—and has committed funds for the task. Industry and state and community governments are confronted with an unmistakable challenge to get busy and do likewise.

'No' To Cancerous Chicken

It is gratifying that the secretary of agriculture has rejected the idea of permitting cancerous chickens to be used for human consumption. Though no link has been found between avian leukosis and cancer in humans, the small remaining chance that the virus might "take" in people is not an acceptable risk.

That is the nub of the matter, though Secretary Clifford M. Hardin stressed something else in announcing the decision. It is, he said, "esthetically undesirable and unacceptable to pass for human food any poultry showing visible signs of leukosis lesions or tumors."

The truth is that esthetic considerations could have been served under the rules change proposed by a panel of veterinarians and animal disease specialists. It was recommended that chickens bearing leukosis lesions or tumors not be condemned, as is now done, but that the offending part merely be removed. That way, chicken parts coming to market would show no signs of disease.

This kind of subterfuge would be hard to justify, especially since the possibility of cancer transference from infected chickens cannot be wholly dismissed. The surgeon general evidently took this into account in recommending that the panel's proposed easing of the rules be rejected. We're glad Hardin took his advice.

Several Roads To Rome

The old saw that there are more ways than one to skin a cat illuminates an important aspect of the problem of automotive air pollution. It is becoming more evident all along that there are various possible approaches to this problem.

The greatest attention has been focused on alternatives to the conventional gasoline engine. People talk of electric cars, of steam cars. Small-scale conversion of automobiles to natural gas is getting started.

Then there are devices designed to curb emission of noxious exhaust gases. These constitute the industry's major contribution thus far to solution of this problem. Recently something new has been publicized. One oil company already is marketing gasoline with an additive said to lessen the poisonous fumes. Another says it will produce a lead-free—and consequently much less pollutive—gasoline if the auto industry will design an engine to use it. This may be, as an executive of the oil firm optimistically says, "a most promising route to the development of an essentially pollution-free automobile."

The point here made is that automotive air pollution can be attacked in a number of different ways. It would be in the broad public interest for the federal government to encourage trying all those ways that show promise.

Target: Leadership System

Reform Movement Churning Among House Demos

By JOHN BECKLER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The reform movement now churning among House Democrats is drawing a bead on Speaker John W. McCormack, but he is more a gaunt, gray symbol than the reformers' real target.

The actual target is the feudal-like system under which the House operates, with committee chairmen wielding the power and McCormack, at best, just one among the barons. That's what makes the reformers' task so difficult. They are trying to topple not just a man but a massive structure rooted in custom and cemented by self-interest. With 21 standing committees and well over 100 subcommittees in the House, chairmen represent 45 per cent of the Democratic membership. Add a member waiting next in line to slip into each top spot, and an overwhelming majority has a strong incentive for preserving the seniority system. Nevertheless an attack is being prepared. It will begin next Wednesday when a Democratic party caucus will be asked to appoint a committee to study the organization of the House and recommend improvements. The improvement backers have in mind is abolition of the seniority system.

Although such a change has long been the goal of the younger and more liberal Democrats, the decision to launch the effort next week was made after California Rep. Jerome Waldie, kicked over the whole bubbling cauldron of unrest by directly challenging McCormack's leadership and calling for a vote of no confidence in the speaker at the Wednesday caucus.

Waldie hasn't the slightest hope of getting much support for his resolution. Even the large and growing number of Democrats who want to see McCormack replaced when his term expires at the end of the year see no point in undermining him in mid-session.

But Waldie has succeeded completely in his real goal—to get his colleagues to "think the unthinkable" and prepare for a leadership change in the next Congress so basic reform can begin.

Such thoughts, once confined to the deep privacy of secluded offices, are now heard openly. And where a few months ago there was despair among the reformers at McCormack's announcement that he would seek another term as speaker, now there is growing optimism that he will be beaten if he does.

Waldie also is succeeding in another of his aims—bringing the public into the fight.

The nationwide publicity given to his challenge to McCormack has produced a wide and favorable response. In the first few days he received more than 500 letters from all over the country, only 10 of which expressed disapproval.

And the support has come not only from people who could be expected to cheer any attack on authority. Visiting his San Francisco Bay area district last weekend he received a standing ovation at a meeting of staunchly middle American group of credit union officials, and he says he found the whole range of his constituency with him. Newspapers have commented favorably on his efforts in editorials.

The reaction among Waldie's colleagues in the House has been more restrained. "There hasn't been any personal bitterness," he says. But most members feel he is putting them on the spot unnecessarily now when the real fight will come next January.

From the speaker, Waldie has received only a terse note acknowledging receipt of Waldie's letter announcing his challenge. But in comments to newsmen, McCormack has been more voluble.

Seizing on the one paragraph in Waldie's letter that said he had no complaint about the way the speaker had treated him, McCormack said "apparently kindness on my part is not a virtue with him."

The remark, which seemed unresponsive to Waldie's charge of ineffective leadership, was, in fact, a key to the whole problem the reformers are dealing with.

For being kind—or unkind—to members is virtually the only power the speaker has. It is on past kindnesses and the threat of withholding future ones that the speaker must rely in trying to persuade committee chairmen to do his bidding.

The speaker of the House is generally considered one of the most powerful officials in government; sometimes he has been described as second only to the President.

The Utterly Odious Among Students

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
NEA Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON (NEA) — In a midwestern city, a high school teen-ager was hospitalized to be treated for an addictive drug (not heroin). Evidently cured, back in school, he was given a sports new car for his birthday by his happy parents.

Not too long afterward, school officials called the boy's mother to ask why he had not been to school for several days. The mother, no harsh disciplinarian but a quiet-spoken, gentle-spirited woman, went in search of her son. She found him in the school area, back on drugs, driving idly around.

When she remonstrated with him and threatened to take away his car, the boy knocked his mother down in the street and drove off, leaving her there. She had to be hospitalized briefly.

Today the boy is out of school, minus car, living away from home. He needs psychiatric care, but doctors tell his mother the city's psychiatric wards are so filled that the corridors are being used for bed space. His case is not considered serious enough to compel admittance.

Let's go now to a city farther west. An admirable young boy, a high achiever in many fields, well-adjusted and good-humored, recently was arguing with his mother over the gradual lengthening of his hair.

"You just don't understand," he said as she fled the room.

To another listener, he explained what his mother did not get.

"Everybody at school (a private academy) wears his hair this way, so I do, too. I feel I have to, because I don't do any of the other things most of the rest of them do."

Does that include using drugs?

The boy's answer was "yes." He said he had been approached several times, had always rebuffed the youthful pushers, and was now left alone.

In a large eastern city high school, a teen-age student twice in recent weeks has been a witness to little enactments on the "drug scene," incontrovertible evidence that drugs (possibly heroin in one instance) were being used.

Before deciding whether or not to report these incidents, the student had to weigh the question of possible bodily harm if vengeful drug users discovered who reported them. Nice age, isn't it?

Back to the Midwest, to a fair-sized university. A lovely young girl, not a top-rank student but plainly capable of being captivated by imaginative teaching, tossed in the towel early in her second year. She eloped with an earnest young man in a modest-sized town who had to skip college because he is his mother's sole support.

Did the college's "brutal impersonality" turn this young girl off? Not at all. What turned her off, and her whole life had been proof of a deep liking for people, was the crude behavior of her male and female college associates.

Her experience, as told to me, was that a disconcertingly large proportion of her female college mates were, at worst, petty thieves—and at best grossly and continuously inconsiderate in their day-to-day personal dealing with her and others.

Hardly a week passed when she did not lose some article of clothing or other personal possession to the girl thieves in her dormitory. Many times she found the incontestable proof later in other girls' rooms.

As for the male students, this attractive, sensitive young girl summed them up as being, almost without exception, arrogant young sexual vultures to whom the girls were simply targets without feelings.

I have just heard comparable testimony from another young girl who attended a larger midwestern university. Thievery was common.

Ann Landers:

Love Suddenly Old-Fashioned

Dear Ann Landers: The way the homosexuals are taking over the country, a straight person is considered an oddity. One must look hard and long these days to find a movie or a play that deals with heterosexual love. Love between a man and a woman suddenly seems old-fashioned, out of style, or just plain dull.

And now, I see there's a church out in Hollywood (natch) that has a fairy pastor and a congregation composed of nearly 300 fags and lesbians. (When the word gets around, you won't be able to get into the place.)

The pastor was formerly associated with a church in Tennessee. He was married, divorced and has a son. This pastor was excommunicated because his church does not approve of dancing, movies or wearing jewelry. You can imagine the reaction when they learned he was gay!

This clergyman recently announced that he will "marry" homosexual couples who have lived together for at least six months. He made it clear that these marriages are not legal. "But they are spiritual," he said emphatically and, "emotionally binding."

What do you think of this, Ann. Dare you speak out? — Resident of the World's Largest Open-Air Lunatic Asylum—Los Angeles

Dear Resident: If homosexuals want to pray as a group, it's all right with me. I'm more concerned about the violent people in our society than those who meet in peaceful assembly to worship.

Dear Ann Landers: I've been reading your column for years hoping someone would write in with my problem. No one has. Please help me—I'm getting desperate.

My husband is 36 years old.

He cannot read or write. He can sign his name and address—and that's all.

When he was a child, his parents moved a great deal. They were very poor and he missed a lot of school. Nobody noticed. I wasn't aware of his illiteracy until after we were married. He used to pretend he left his glasses somewhere and I read things to him before I realized he couldn't read.

We have three lovely children and we live in a nice neighborhood. This wonderful man works seven days a week and is considered a fine employee. Unfortunately, he has had to pass up many promotions because of his illiteracy. He is ashamed of it and I cannot let anyone know.

I've seen him try to learn while pretending to help the children with their homework, but it is beyond him. It breaks my heart. Finally he agreed to let me teach him but I don't know where to begin. I am not a teacher and he won't go to a school because he is too embarrassed. If you can help me to help this wonderful man, I will be ever grateful.—His Wife

Dear Wife: It could be that your husband has dyslexia—a brain disorder not uncommon in people who have reading problems. This can be corrected. Suggest that he get himself tested. (The school principal can direct you.) If he does not have dyslexia, go to the first grade teacher and ask her to recommend books and a manual to help you teach him. She need not know the material is for your husband. Good luck and God bless.

Law For Today

Q—Are there any caliber limits on rifles used for small animal hunting in Illinois?

A—No, there are no caliber restrictions of rifles. There are restrictions, however, on shotguns. They must (1) be not larger than 10 gauge, (2) have a shot size not larger than BB (.18 inch diameter), and (3) repeating and semi-automatic guns must be plugged so as to be incapable of firing more than three consecutive shots.

Deer may be taken only with a shotgun firing a rifled slug, not smaller than 20 gauge or larger than 10 gauge.

YOUR BIRTHDAY and HOROSCOPE

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 17—Born today, you are a hard worker and a hard player, depending upon whether it is time for labor or leisure. One who wins easily, you are an equally good sport about losing, never blaming another for your failures any more than you would praise another for your successes. You take upon yourself whatever must be done to make dreams a reality; profitable projects from airy ideas is, in fact, your specialty, your stock in trade.

Gifted with an intensity of energy that puts others to shame, you are one who requires great mental and physical activity in order to feel contented. Your enthusiasms are high, and you approach every activity with an air of excitement that transforms even the duller of projects into something bright and shining with promise. With your mind working easily and rapidly, you expect—and usually get—success out of life.

Keen of judgment with sharp intuitions, you have an exceptional ability to judge the worth of an idea almost instantaneously with your recognition of it. You have a wonderful faculty for knowing whether an idea is feasible or not and whether profits can be gained without too much chance for loss in the meanwhile. You are, thus, very sure of yourself.

To find what is in store for you tomorrow, select your birthday and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.

Wednesday, February 18

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21-Feb. 19)—If you can't take the time to make plans carefully, you would be wise to put plans off completely. Avoid the slipshod.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 21)—Make sure that you are prepared for the advancement you seek. You may be talking yourself into something that is over your head.

ARIES (March 22-April 20)—Don't be afraid to meet the opposition head-on. This is an excellent time for showing others what you're made of.

TAURUS (April 21-May 21)—Foresight pays off; hindsight merely makes you angry with yourself. Make an effort to see what lies ahead for you.

GEMINI (May 22-June 21)—Prepare to take on unexpected responsibility this afternoon. Children may need your help; be ready to give it to them.

CANCER (June 22-July 23)—Practicality should be the test for new ideas. You can't afford to give time, money, and effort to doomed projects.

LEO (July 24-Aug. 23)—Keep a firm grip on your artistic temperament. You would be wise to take a back seat during this day's activities; otherwise, tempers flare.

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 23)—Routine activities take up the daylight hours. Late evening is a time for making decisions; issues must be decided at this time.

LIBRA (Sept. 24-Oct. 23)—Keep calm and you should be able to turn an ill wind away from you. Refuse to be influenced by one outside the family.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)—Cooperate with others for the advantage of all concerned. The success of a joint enterprise depends upon it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 22)—Something of your adventurous nature may make it impossible for you to experience a quiet day at this time. A time of joy.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23 - Jan. 20)—Don't allow your impulses to be the sole guide of actions today. Take the reasonable approach to problems.

In Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A far-sighted fellow is Van Dyke. For example: He is now taping a CBS special with Bill Cosby, which will not appear on the network until November.

He is also doing introductions to the CBS showings of "Born Free," scheduled to be a Christmas attraction for years to come, in the manner of "The Wizard of Oz."

He is discussing with Carl Reiner the format for the new Van Dyke television series, which will begin on CBS in the 1971-72 season.

Besides these things, Van Dyke is looking ahead to his retirement from films, which he says will occur after he concludes his two remaining commitments with Disney and the Mirisch Company.

All this seems highly visionary, except for the fact that Dick Van Dyke usually ends up accomplishing what he plans to do. Many a beleaguered city dweller talks about escaping the urban mess. Dick did it.

"Some friends told us about this marvelous country in Arizona," he related. "My wife and I went down there, and we fell in love with the place. It's ranch country 45 miles north of Phoenix and 2,500 feet higher, so it is green though still desert. We bought a place that is 180 acres and has a little creek running through it."

"At first my wife and I thought we would use it as a retirement home. But the kids outvoted us. They wanted to move down there right away."

The Van Dykes sold their Encino home and became permanent Arizonans last June. Two of the sons go to college here, and the daughters, 15 and 8, live on the ranch. Dick said he had no problem keeping busy. One of his latest passions is archeology. He and his wife spend hours digging in the remains of a thousand-year-old Indian civilization which he found on his property.

At any rate, he doesn't miss filmmaking: "I've never really felt comfortable in movies. Well, maybe in this last one. I guess after doing so many pictures I stored up in my cortex some knowledge of what to do. But film acting is still something of a mystery to me."

Television is his bag, and he is looking forward to a renewal of his successful partnership with Carl Reiner on "The Dick Van Dyke Show." CBS agreed that the new series could be made in Arizona, and Dick gloated that there is a modern studio "just a brief Honda ride from my ranch."

Jim: "I see the Bridge World magazine celebrated 40 years of continuous publication last year."

Oswald: "The first contract tournament was played in February, 1929. Ely Culbertson started the magazine a few months later. The number of top players and teachers who have contributed to it is legion, but it has only had three editors in its existence. Ely himself, then Sonny Moyse and Edgar Kaplan for the last few years."

Jim: "Here is an interesting problem from the December, 1969, issue. You are supposed to look at only the North and West hands and, in particular, to concentrate on West."

Oswald: "You cash three hearts against South's three-spade contract and shift to the four of clubs. Your partner's jack is taken by South's king. South proceeds to cash the ace, king and queen of spades. East discards the eight of clubs on the second spade and the three of clubs next."

Jim: "The Bridge World asks 'what problem do you anticipate?'"

Oswald: "The answer will become apparent if you look at the complete hand. South holds the king, jack and a third diamond. He will go to dummy with the ace of clubs and lead a diamond toward his hand. Your partner will duck and, if South now puts up his king, it will be up to you to get rid of your queen of diamonds."

Jim: "There is no need for you to see this problem that early in the play, but it is mighty important to see it when it actually arises."

Oswald: "The man who sees this possibility early will be ready. The man who doesn't anticipate it may forget to make the play. If he hangs onto that queen, he will be caught in an end play and South will make his contract."

Rocks In Her Basement Problem For Retiree

By JIM FARRELL
Associated Press Writer
DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Dorothy Hays has to get the rocks out of her basement—4030 of them.

She says she'll sell some, give some away, keep a few and start working with smaller rocks. She's reluctant to do it, but after all, how many 20-pound rocks can you keep in a house trailer?

Mrs. Hays, is one of the foremost amateur mineralogists in the country.

Her neat, bright basement workroom houses the collection she has built up over nearly half a century. Its white showcases display the pyrites, jades and geodes about which Mrs. Hays speaks with knowledge acquired over the years.

She is 57, looks several years younger and is married to a successful businessman who is a ham radio bug.

Mr. and Mrs. Hays are soon to leave for Florida, retirement and a new mobile home. The move will mean that Mrs. Hays will have to scale down her hobby drastically. She won't have room for her collection as she does in her present spacious home.

"After work my husband goes to the ham equipment and I come down here to work on my minerals," she says. "We enjoy it very much."

But much more than enjoyment has come out of the hobby of the lady without a college degree.

Representatives of the Smithsonian Institution recently expressed interest in her collection.

And a rock-hunting trip to Canada a few years back gave Mrs. Hays a chance to do something that the geologists for a major mining company had tried and failed.

"We were just poking around an old dump (for 'useless' rocks brought up from tunnel mines) and I found this," she said, pointing out gray rock speckled with what looked like —and was—gold. "I think the company is mining it commercially now."

But commercial aspects of her interest aren't what catches Mrs. Hays' fancy. "I started when I was 7 or 8 and I've always been more interested in the science aspect of it."

Her scientific interest brought her a four-year stint, 1962-66, analyzing the atomic structure of minerals for the Iowa Highway Commission.

lives, fewer teen-agers would lose respect for them."

Without knowing all the circumstances I can't give a guess about these parents. I do wonder if the boys are handicapped in some way. Most 14-year-olds could ride a public bus home from practice. Perhaps they live in a suburban area where there are no buses. Perhaps both parents are working in an effort to pay for these green acres. Maybe the parents feel they purchased the coach and his free-time services along with their new split-levels.

Perhaps their sons have been in Little League and now the parents overreact to any kind of ball game. Perhaps all the parents are in hospitals and rest homes because they are part of that overworked, over-organized group called The Middle-Aged. Maybe they did so much chauffeuring during their children's elementary years that they can't face up to one more car pool.

It has been said that what we need in this country is a branch of medicine called Mediatics. (For people too old for pediatrics and too young for geriatrics.)

To ascertain if you need mediatic care, answer the following questions:

1. Do you sometimes secretly wonder whatever happened to sandlot ball?

2. Did you ever write an article including anecdotes about walking to school, walking to the swimming pool, walking to the library and have a magazine return it with a rejection slip that said, "Sorry, we don't print fiction?"

3. Did you collapse in a sobbing heap upon realizing that on one day alone you were scheduled to serve on the Community Chest block committee, the PTA membership drive, the college alumni fund dinner, the Wives of Concerned Businessmen's "Tea for Teens" seminar?

4. Were you ever so exhausted from hauling children to dancing class, piano lessons, first-aid instructions, Boy Scout meetings, and cheerleader practice that you were unable to attend your gourmet cooking class at the university extension?

5. Did you ever awaken from a sound sleep screaming, "My children have no feet?"

Salted Skillet Stops Sticking

By POLLY CRAMER
DEAR POLLY—I want to tell Esther how to keep eggs from sticking to her aluminum skillet when frying them. After she has melted margarine in the skillet, sprinkle the bottom of the skillet with salt and then put in the eggs. This salt trick also helps keep meat from sticking to the skillet while frying.

Polly's Problem
DEAR POLLY—I am a secretary and would like to know how to remove a carbon paper mark on a cotton dress. Not only would I appreciate a remedy but I feel sure other secretaries would, too.—SUSAN

DEAR POLLY—I had so many chenille toilet-seat covers left when the rest of the sets were worn out so I sewed two covers together along the rounded edge, forming a mitt, and left the straight end open. I sewed a two-inch wide strip of cotton material on the inside bottom to form a slot through which I ran a strong cord. I put my broom in this, pulled the cord tight and have a soft, inexpensive, handy wall mop. Nice to use for in-between cleaning.—MRS. R.F.G.

DEAR POLLY—New drivers who need experience in parking can make portable poles for practice by using discarded broom or mop handles. Smooth them free of splinters with steel wool, wipe clean and spray paint if you like. Paper cups may be used on top of the sticks. For the bases, use discarded sand buckets or tall juice cans. They can also be spray painted and filled with sand or fine slack. These may be carried in the car trunk to the place where one is going to practice.—JOSEPHINE

DEAR POLLY—When I send a get-well card to anyone in the hospital, I always enclose two stamped envelopes and two sheets of writing paper. Stamps are usually forgotten when one enters a hospital and there is always a need for them. Often I also enclose a small ball-point pen and some extra stamps.—H. G.

Have you ever tried to give an infant from a few days to about one year of age a teaspoonful of medicine, only to have most of it run out of the baby's mouth? For better results, try putting the medicine in a rubber nipple. Most babies will suck it out and swallow it before you can say, "Get well soon."

Q—My grandson's dog sleeps on his bed and he (the boy) keeps hamsters and chipmunks in cages in his bedroom. He has lots of trouble with sinusitis and swollen glands. Shouldn't he get rid of the pets or at least keep them in the cellar?
A—The deep attachment a child has for his pets should be encouraged. A pet should be banished only if it can be shown that it has a communicable disease or that a member of the family has a true allergy to it. Your grandson's sinusitis and enlarged lymph nodes are most likely the result of an infection picked up from another human being.

Q—Can a small green turtle carry disease to a child?

A—It may transmit an infection with Salmonella, the germ that causes food poisoning. For this reason, the child should not touch the turtle or the water in its bowl. If he should happen to do so, it is important that he wash his hands promptly with soap that contains hexachlorophene.

Q—Is it harmful for small children to sleep in the same room with several parakeets?

A—Various birds that have been domesticated are capable of transmitting parrot fever or psittacosis, a form of pneumonia. If the birds have been in the house for two months or more and show no signs of illness, however, there is no danger. Most tropical birds now undergo a quarantine period before they are allowed to enter this country.

Q—My seven-week-old son has a protruding navel. We have used stomach binders and have taped it but nothing helps. What do you suggest?

A—Practically all umbilical hernias close spontaneously by before the child is two. Since taping irritates the skin, it should be avoided. The best treatment is watchful waiting. If surgical repair is necessary, it should be done shortly before your son starts to go to school.

Isell Scores 40 To Let Kentucky Score 116-86 Win

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Big Dan Isell fired in 40 points Monday night and led third-ranked Kentucky to a 116-86 victory over Georgia that moved the Wildcats nearer a 25th Southeastern Conference basketball championship.

The Wildcats won easily after Georgia made threatening gestures by closing a 12-point deficit to seven at 57-50 with 13:34 remaining in the game. The victory was Kentucky's 20th in 21 games and gave Coach Adolph Rupp a 20-game victory season for the 21st time in his 40 seasons at Kentucky. The 116 points scored by the Wildcats cracked by one point their Memorial Coliseum record set in 1966 against Auburn.

Souffle Uses Pudding Mix

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

This cold souffle is made with a package of chocolate pudding mix and is for those tasters who do not like a very sweet dessert. Because the flavor is on the mild chocolate side, the cook who originated the recipe took a hint from Mexican cooking and added cinnamon.

Walnuts go into the dessert, too. And nowadays they come in convenient packages—shelled in see-through bags and in vacuum cans as well as in-the-shell in see-through bags.

CHILLED CHOCOLATE WALNUT SOUFFLE

1 package (4-serving size) chocolate fudge or dark sweet chocolate pudding mix

1 envelope unflavored gelatin

¼ teaspoon salt

¼ teaspoon cinnamon

2 eggs

3½ cups milk

3 tablespoons sugar

1 container (8 ounces) heavy cream

1 cup finely chopped walnuts

Tie a 1½-inch wide collar of wax paper around the outside top rim of a 3½-cup souffle dish.

In a saucepan stir together the pudding mix, gelatin, salt and cinnamon. Add the egg yolks (put whites in a small mixing bowl) and ½ cup of the milk. With a whisk beat to combine; add the remaining 2 cups milk. Cook over moderate heat, stirring constantly, until mixture reaches a full boil. Remove from heat; cool.

Beat egg whites until stiff; beat in 2 tablespoons of the sugar, 1 tablespoon at a time.

Without washing beater, beat ½ cup cream until stiff.

Into the cooled pudding fold egg whites, cream and 2-3rds cup of the walnuts.

Turn into prepared dish. Chill until firm.

At serving time remove paper. Beat the remaining cream until almost stiff; add the remaining 1 tablespoon sugar and beat until stiff. Garnish top of pudding with cream; sprinkle with remaining 1-3rd cup walnuts.

Makes six servings.

Maravich Headed For 3,500 Level

By FRANK ECK
AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor

Pistol Pete Maravich, that electrifying son of a crew cut coach, may have droopy socks and a floppy mod hairdo, but at the rate he's going, the Louisiana State University senior will have put more than 3,500 points into baskets by the end of the season.

Within a space of two nights this winter on his home court at Baton Rouge, La., Maravich put 102 points through the nets for a career total of 3,036 points with 12 games left to play.

The 6-foot-5 senior, whose father Press Maravich coaches the LSU Tigers, not only is the new NCAA all-time scoring leader but he is a cinch to become a third-time All-American.

When young Maravich scored 53 points against Mississippi, he wiped out the 2,973-point career record set by Cincinnati's Oscar Robertson in 1960. Two nights later he got 49 points against Mississippi State.

Maravich, whose No. 23 uniform probably will be retired by LSU, gave more than an inkling of his prolific scoring two years ago. As a sophomore, he scored 1,138 points in 26 games for a 43.8 average. Last year, he put 1,148 points on the board and he is doing even better this season with a 48-point average at the halfway mark.

"He's unbelievable," says papa Maravich, who a year ago was reported ready to listen to offers to coach a pro team that drafts his son. But Press says he's quite happy at LSU and son Pete still has a lot of scoring to do this season.

He is the first major college scorer to pass the 3,000-point mark.

Four college division players passed that total with record holder Bob Hopkins of Grambling (1956) getting 3,759 in 126 games. But each played four varsity seasons. Pete Maravich may not get 3,700 points, but he's going to be mighty close.

U.S. Backs Britain's Germ Warfare Pact

GENEVA (AP) — The United States yesterday pledged support for Britain's draft treaty to outlaw germ warfare.

Arriving for a new session of the 25-nation disarmament conference, chief U.S. negotiator Gerard C. Smith told newsmen that America does not have a proposal of its own on the issue of bacteriological weapons.

"We associate ourselves with the British proposal," he said in a prepared statement. "I hope that early progress can be made on an agreement to ban biological methods of warfare, along the lines proposed last year by the United Kingdom."

The British draft treaty calls for a ban on the manufacture, stockpiling and use of "microbial and other biological agents." Last November, President Nixon renounced the development of all germ warfare weapons and gave orders for the disposal of stockpiles.

TV MARIJUANA DEBATE FINDS MAIL NOT ALWAYS WITHIN LETTER OF LAW

BOSTON (AP) — Several viewers of the public television network debate, "The Advocates," apparently turned on before they tuned in to a discussion on marijuana laws.

When the television program's mail department here counted and sorted the postal response to the debate, they found that three letters were really "pot shots" at current law.

One letter urging legalization of marijuana contained a "pot" cigarette taped to the page. The message next to the cigarette read: "Smoke this. It's real." and below the "pot" was printed the following stern warning: "Remove the Scotch tape first. Smoking Scotch tape is dangerous!"

Another letter, postmarked Las Vegas, Nev., included a partially smoked marijuana cigarette. The sender said he had first tried marijuana in 1931, was willing to contribute time and money to legalize it, and closed his message, "High and Sincere."

All told, "The Advocates" marijuana debate drew 9,188 responses. Of this number, 78 per cent favored elimination of laws against using "pot," 20 per cent favored the laws and 2 per cent expressed views favoring neither position.

The samples of marijuana sent "The Advocates" were turned over to local police. Under existing federal and most state laws the possession of marijuana is a crime.

Smut Dealers Running Scared Post Office Inspector Says

By PEGGY SIMPSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Smut sellers are running scared following convictions of prominent pornography dealers, the Post Office's chief inspector says.

Faced with convictions, some of the best-known pornography dealers have given up their mailing lists and are going out of business, William J. Cotter said in an interview.

In some cities, he said, "adult" bookstores heard about a Supreme Court action upholding eight obscenity convictions and closed their doors before police arrived.

Cotter, a former FBI agent before becoming chief inspector, said there were 234,000 complaints last year about unsolicited pornographic mailings.

Nearly all the mail could be traced to about 20 operators, Cotter said, and most of these are now under indictment.

Cotter said questions remain whether any definition of "obscenity" for literature can pass court scrutiny of whether the book has a redeeming social message. But he said there's little question about the lack of redeeming qualities of the sexually explicit photographs which

Dominican Jet Crash Kills 102

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — No survivors had been found early today from a Dominican airliner which crashed in the Caribbean with 102 persons aboard, rescue officials reported.

The passengers included seven U.S. citizens and 45 Puerto Ricans, officials of the airline said.

The Dominican Airlines twinjet DC9 crashed into the Caribbean about five miles off the south coast of the island of Hispaniola a few minutes after taking off for San Juan, Puerto Rico, Sunday afternoon.

The pilot had radioed that his engines were failing.

The airline said the U.S. citizens aboard, other than the Puerto Ricans, were John Payne, Chicago; Theodore Payne, Salt Lake City; Ruth Atosto, New York City; Gilbert Hays, Florida; Francis Robert Downes of Massachusetts, who lived in the Dominican Republic at Las Matas de Farfan; and two Cubans who were naturalized U.S. citizens, Emerito Perez Acevedo and Concepcion Nanson.

Also aboard were 45 Dominicans, one Spaniard, two Peruvians, an Argentinean and a Belgian priest who lived in the Dominican Republic.

Wreckage was spotted about five miles offshore, and Dominican air and naval units searched for survivors through the night. An American search plane from Puerto Rico dropped flares over the area.

If no survivors are found, it will be Latin America's second worst air crash.

Among those reported aboard was a former world lightweight boxing champion, Carlos "Teo" Cruz, his wife and two children. Also aboard were the wife, daughter and sister of Gen. Antonio Imbert Barbera, who assassinated Dominican dictator Rafael Trujillo in 1961 and headed a ruling junta after the overthrow of President Juan Bosch.

His daughter, Leslie, was going to San Juan to buy her wedding dress. She was engaged to the son of the Italian consul.

Cruz, 32, has been training for a fight next month with Roger Zami in Paris and was to have left for France Wednesday. Cruz lost the lightweight title to Mando Ramos of Los Angeles last year.

President Joaquin Balaguer proclaimed two days of national mourning and expressed his personal sorrow at the tragedy. Airline officials said the $5 million jetliner had been in service less than two months.

SCHEDULE SKI MOVIES

The February meeting of the YMCA Ski Club is scheduled for this Wednesday at 7:00 at the YMCA. Guests are invited at no charge.

A special at this month's meeting will be the showing of two very exciting and colorful ski films. The first is that of "The U.S. Ski Team in Action," and the second is "The Portillo Story."

The Jacksonville Ski Club meets the first and third Wednesdays of each month from 7:00 to 8:25 at the YMCA. Membership is open to adults, families, and high school age youth. The only requirement is a YMCA membership. Over thirty individuals are now members of the club. Experience is not necessary.

Our sun is part of the Milky Way. It is one of the more than 100 billion stars that make up this galaxy.

dominate many smut mailings. Cotter cited three factors as significant in the fight against pornography peddlers:

—Supreme Court decisions refusing to disturb the conviction of eight Boston book dealers for selling pornography and voiding the movie "I Am Curious (Yellow)" to be shown in Boston despite a state court ban.

—Two federal convictions of dealers for sending obscene matter through the mails.

—Indictments of 17 persons on charges of sending offensive materials through the mail, with consideration by federal grand juries of similar cases involving five more dealers.

He said California's statewide crackdown is helping dry up a principal source of the objectionable mail. Los Angeles police alone have made 80 arrests, he said.

Cotter also suggested another law might help his division. That would allow the Post Office to computerize a master list of individuals who object to receiving sexual advertising.

Any large advertiser dealing in such material would have to pay the Post Office to look at the list. Under penalty of prosecution, they could not use names appearing on the master list.

Focus On Taxes, War

By KEN HARTNETT
Associated Press Writer

CLEVELAND (AP) — The uneasy alliance that forged massive peace marches last November in Washington and San Francisco is joining again for a new wave of antiwar actions April 15.

The outlines for the concerted action emerged Sunday as the Student Mobilization Committee capped a raucous weekend conference by voting to make April 15 the highlight of its spring offensive.

The same day—the deadline for the filing of federal income tax returns—had already been chosen as an action day by both the New Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam and the Vietnam Moratorium Committee.

All three groups worked together in building the Nov. 15 demonstrations, which attracted hundreds of thousands of marchers in a demand for

2 Chandlerville Boys Killed In Car Crash

Two Cass county youths were killed and five persons were injured Sunday in a two-car collision on Route 78, four miles north of Virginia.

Lloyd Parrish, 13, the son of Ella Jean Parrish of Chandlerville, was dead when authorities arrived at the accident scene. Robert Dietsch, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marion Dietsch of Chandlerville, died en route to Passavant hospital.

The two boys were passengers in a car driven by Bryan Harbison, 16, of Chandlerville. State policemen said that the Harbison car was northbound when it went out of control near a curve at the bottom of a steep hill and skidded sideways into an auto driven by Wendell Johnson, 34, of Sterling.

Johnson, his wife, Beverly, and two daughters, Jennifer, nine, and Stephanie, five, were taken to Passavant hospital. Mrs. Johnson suffered multiple fractures and was listed in "serious" condition Monday in Passavant's intensive care unit.

Wendell Johnson and Jennifer were listed in "good" condition. Stephanie Johnson and Harbison were both treated in the outpatient clinic at Passavant and released.

The two Johnson girls are students at Illinois School for the Deaf and were coming to Jacksonville at the time of the accident.

Cass county coroner Richard Pugh said the two dead boys were thrown from the car. Parrish was thrown out the rear window, about six feet from the car, and Dietsch was found four feet from the car.

Church Merger Proposed

NEW YORK (AP) — Merger of nine major U.S. Protestant churches by 1980 has been proposed after eight years of discussions and negotiations.

The proposal, announced Sunday, would bring 25 million members into a single denomination, which has been tentatively named the Church of Christ Uniting.

The churches involved are the United Church of Christ, Episcopal, United Methodist, Christian Disciples, United Presbyterian, Presbyterian (southern), African Methodist Episcopal, African Methodist Episcopal Zion and Christian Methodist Episcopal. The last three are predominantly Negro.

The proposal will be submitted next month to the annual meeting of the Consultation on Church Union in St. Louis. Upon approval, it would then be presented to the different denominations for revision and decision on whether to merge.

The merged denomination would observe the sacraments of baptism both for infants and adults and the Lord's Supper. Other features of the traditions of each church would be incorporated into the worship form.

It would be headed by a bishop, but its governing councils would be dominated by elected laymen. The proposal specifies that the first presiding bishop would be a Negro and that the church would bar all forms of racial discrimination.

The church would be committed to "struggle with racism, poverty, environment, war and the problems of the family of man, minister to the deep yearning of the human spirit for fullness in life and provide for the common use of the resources and gifts" of many Christian traditions.

Reform

But a different picture emerged in a recent interview with Rep. Carl Albert of Oklahoma, McCormack's chief lieutenant as the Democratic leader of the House. He was asked what the leadership could do to make the House operate more effectively.

"We can go to the committee chairman and ask them to cooperate," he said. "I think they generally do."

Shouldn't there be a more centralized authority?" he was asked.

"The leadership doesn't have the power to force committees to do things," Albert replied.

Since 1910, when the House stripped Speaker Joe Cannon of much of his powers on the grounds he had become a czar, committee chairmen have been largely autonomous rulers of their own domains.

On the strength of his personality, prestige or powers of persuasion, a speaker like Sam Rayburn, who held the office longer than any other man, could exert considerable influence. But in all likelihood Rayburn would be facing the same revolt today that confronts McCormack.

Rayburn ruled during an easier time. The members accepted discipline as a matter of course. Challenge and confrontation were no more at home in Congress than in the rest of the country. It is McCormack's misfortune to be a dealer in kindness in harder and more demanding times.

The challenge to the system next Wednesday may fare no better than the challenge to McCormack, but it would be as rash for the committee chairman to hail a victory as it would for McCormack. The tide of change that has engulfed so many American institutions is now lapping at the walls of the Capitol.

TODAY'S THOUGHT
By BILL BUCHANAN

In a group discussion not too long ago, it was asked why people curse in conversation. It was noted with amazement that some cursers are successful, brilliant men, capable of good speech. Cussing is a habit one acquires to add impact to words. Those who lace language with profanity do it because they fear normal expression lacks strength to put a point across. There is no question that the cussing habit can be broken.

One man in the group told an interesting story. He related how, years ago, his three year old boy stumbled and stubbed his toe. The child let out with an explosive barrage of cussing which shocked his mother and dad. Before they could say anything, the child slyly sensed their shock. In the quick of a wink, he changed from sinner to saint and started to sing, "Jesus loves me, this I know, for the Bible tells me so." The fellow told how he and his wife, while shocked, had to inwardly chuckle over the surprisingly quick transition of the little rascal. Since habits are mostly formed by association or example, especially with impressionable youngsters, both parents decided then and there to never use mild profanity ever again.

The son is now a grown man. He is a fine person and an interesting conversationalist. His parents are too...

OFFICIALS ASKED TO CRACK DOWN

Probably in no other sport are officials more open to criticism than in basketball and therein lies a problem that seems to continually grow worse.

The two gentlemen with the striped shirts do their work for all to see and most of their decisions are banked entirely on judgment. Nothing is more susceptible to criticism than personal judgment.

It may be only a personal observation, but we could get more than a few fans, coaches and players on our side, that each year cage officials take more verbal beatings from all sides. Criticism has come from all sides and the officiating situation appears to be one of those areas that will get worse before it gets better.

LET US SAY in a hurry that we aren't criticizing officials for their calling of games. We have never seen what we considered a dishonest official, and, with two exceptions that we considered mandatory, have never blasted them in print. Seldom have we felt an official 'took a game away' from a team.

Our beef is with the 'extracurricular' conduct, so to speak. We happen to be one of those who still believe there is a place for sportsmanship in amateur sport. And, sportsmanship means considerably more than shaking hands with a fellow player or opposing coach after a game.

Several times this season we have watched in near disgust at the displays put on by coaches, condoned by officials and either cheered or jeered by fans. A few years ago officials were told they could call a technical foul on a coach any time he got off the bench during play to question a decision. It hasn't helped that we can see.

"WE DON'T SAY that a coach shouldn't question an official. But it should be done during a timeout or between periods, or at least, in a mannerly fashion that doesn't include following an official down the court or getting in his face and going through all sorts of mannerisms that naturally incite the crowd. And don't think some coaches don't 'push' just as far as they can.

While some of the blame certainly lies with the coaching fraternity, at least as much must be assessed the officials themselves. The officials are the ones who have to put a stop to it, fairly and quickly. We can't think a great deal of an official's work when he seems to be always looking the other way in fear of not being offered a contract the next year.

WE HAVE YET to meet an official who made his living blowing a whistle a couple of times a week. The money isn't that good, officials have to like their work to a certain extent. We can't see how they can enjoy it when they feel they have to put up with the grandstand plays by some of the coaches in order to get a job. It stands to reason that if all officials would put a stop to these displays, they would have to be hired back somewhere.

This is not to say that the home team is the only side that shoots for and gets away with conduct not prescribed in our educational manuals. The visiting coach also had the prerogative of 'scratching' any official in the future.

We, the fans, also must shoulder some of the blame. We naturally expect a perfect game from officials every time they walk on the floor and you never get it. We suspect that officials have as good a game as the players or coaches, but how many times have you seen anyone applaud an official?

THIS SITUATION causes more problems than may meet the eye. We hear coaches and officials complaining constantly about the number of competent officials and those that will be accepted by the opponents. We know of one instance where a list of 48 officials was sent to one school and all but 12 were scratched. We know of other instances where a coach will scratch officials for what virtually amounts to a personality conflict.

Coaches and athletic directors charged with lining up officials complain that the ranks are getting thinner. They claim there aren't many good young officials taking up the trade (and who can blame them?), yet young officials often find it nearly impossible to get varsity games.

WE UNDERSTAND that in at least one state it is an automatic technical foul any time a coach gets off the bench during the game. We know that some conferences have one man assign officials for league games. Many tournaments, including the state playoffs, are on a rating-assignment basis. We suspect that such developments will become more commonplace in the future.

We don't expect to make too many coaches or officials overly happy with this piece, but we believe that both sides will agree that they are both guilty of some of the aforementioned practices. Both must also concede that there are going to be problems if some measures aren't taken to alleviate the situation in the future.

Illini Face Iowa In 'Must' Game

CHICAGO (AP) — Iowa can't win the Big Ten basketball title without victory at slumping Illinois Tuesday night and then point for another tough road encounter at Ohio State Saturday.

The Hawkeyes hyped their record to 8-0 Saturday by keeping their 100-plus scoring average with a 103-77 pounding of Michigan State. Illinois, meanwhile, absorbed one of its worst beatings in history, 83-49, at Purdue.

"The psychology of having a game plan and then losing track of it compounded the defeat," said Illini Coach Harv Schmidt of the Purdue massacre when slow-down tactics backfired.

"If we don't defeat Iowa

Tuesday, it's all over—for us and for the rest of the conference."

Since the semester break, Illinois has skidded from the top to three straight defeats and now stands 5-3. Purdue is in second place with 7-2 while Ohio State and Minnesota share third with 6-3.

Purdue is at Illinois Saturday and Minnesota is at Michigan. The only other game Tuesday night sends Wisconsin (4-4) to Indiana (1-7).

It is questionable if Wisconsin Coach John Powless will accompany the Badgers to Indiana. He suffered stomach cramps during practices Sunday and was taken to St. Mary's Hospital, where he was reported rest-

IC Hosts Eureka Tonight

The Illinois College basketball five has won the first two of four consecutive home games, and tonight at 8 p.m. the varsity Blueboys take on Eureka College in Memorial Gymnasium.

I.C. was defeated earlier in the season by Eureka, as the Red Devils edged the visiting Blueboys at Eureka, 80-77.

Last Thursday, I.C. trounced visiting Principia College, 82-64, and on Saturday the college home team staved off a determined Rose Poly quintet, 87-85.

Lopez Retires From Baseball After Long Stay

CHICAGO (AP) — Al Lopez, who managed two American League pennant winners, retired from baseball Monday by relinquishing his ties with the Chicago White Sox, whom he had served 13 years.

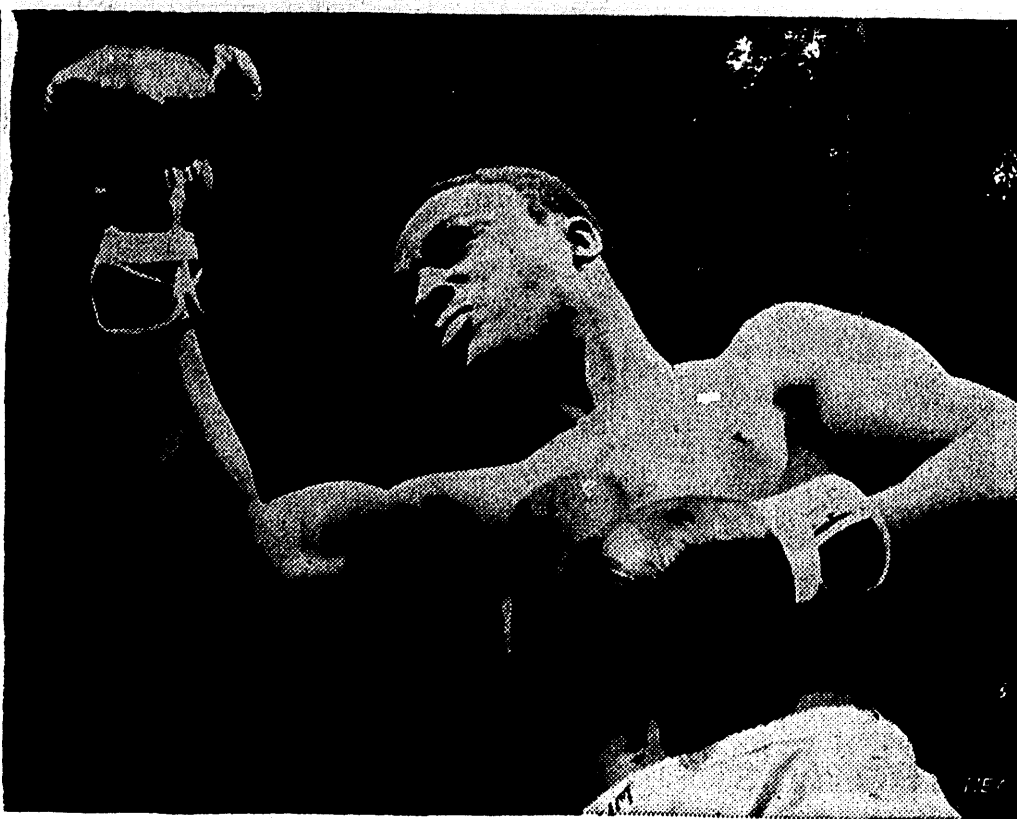

President John Allyn of the Sox announced the 61-year-old Lopez' decision after the senior contacted him from his Tampa, Fla. home.

"I reluctantly accepted Al's decision and deeply regret it," said Allyn after Lopez informed him he wanted to "take things easy" and play golf.

Lopez had been serving the Sox as a vice president in an advisory capacity and doing some special scouting for the club.

Lopez retired as Sox manager after the 1966 season but returned in 1968 to replace Eddie Stanky. Last May, Lopez again stepped down because of illness and was replaced as manager by Don Guttridge, his assistant.

The senior began his major league career as a catcher with the Brooklyn Dodgers in 1923. He also caught for the Braves, Pirates and Indians. He began his managerial career in 1951 at Cleveland and guided the Indians to the 1954 pennant.

Top Outfits Put Streaks On The Line

Three of the area's winningest teams put three of the longest winning streaks up against opponents this evening in a non-conference dominated, 13-game high school schedule.

Triopia, Beardstown and Routt place late-season winning marks on the line in the features of a nine-game, non-league card. Four conference tilts, each having little bearing on the top rung, are also slated.

The area's winningest team, Triopia, will put its 20-game winning skein up against a dangerous Carrollton outfit at Carrollton. The Trojans pack a 21-1 mark to Carrollton's 10-10 reading.

Beardstown has won its last six and nine of its last ten outings but the Tigers' 14-5 mark will be in danger this evening when Beardstown travels to strong Winchester (16-3). The Wildcats have captured their last three outings and 14 of their last 15.

Routt, headed toward its finest record in years, will have a string of six consecutive victories going tonight when the Rockets (13-7) entertain Northwestern (7-14). Routt pulled out a 54-53 triumph over the Wildcats in the Waverly Holiday Tournament.

Elsewhere on the non-conference calendar tonight, Virginia (9-9) goes to Ashland (14-9), Brown County (8-10) hosts Astoria, Griggsville (14-8) entertains Meredosia (10-10), Franklin (11-12) visits Chandlerville (17-5), Waverly (2-18) is at Greenfield (7-12) and North Greene (10-11) plays host to Brussels.

In league action tonight Calhoun (10-10) is at Perry and East Pike (3-17) visits West Pike in the Pike County Conference. New Berlin (12-9) hosts Tri-City in the Sangamo and Bushnell entertains Rushville (8-12) in the Spoon River.

Clan Tries To Get Over .500 This Week

Five games remain on the MacMurray College basketball schedule, as the 10-11 Clansmen strive to get over the .500 mark. Tuesday finds Mac at Western Illinois University for an 8 p.m. game, preceded by a 6 p.m. JV contest.

W.I.U., under new head coach Guy Rice, is having a fine year with a 13-9 record, and is in first place in the IAC. The Leathernecks are led by high scoring senior Dan Braun, (6-5) of Effingham. Mac won last year's game 95-77.

Coach Bill Wall will stick with his veteran starters, however, freshmen Bob Connors, Chicago (Leo) and Ron Riecks, Springfield are pressing hard for starter assignments.

Friday, MacMurray will travel to Augustana College (12-7) in Rock Island to tangle with the third place team in the CCI conference.

The Highlanders will be home Saturday, February 21, against Indiana Central College (13-6) of Indianapolis. The Indiana squad blasted Mac last year 125-101, and another high scoring contest is foreseen in the 8 p.m. tipoff.

Marc Kolb continues to lead the scoring parade with 372 markers and 123 rebounds. Augmenting the Clan attack are Chuck Alexander, 262 points—149 rebounds; Tom Peters, 256

ROUTT FROSH BEATEN
BEARDSTOWN—The Beardstown freshmen basketball team jumped to a 41-33 halftime lead and rolled to a 77-69 victory over the Routt frosh Monday evening.

Tom Lockman had 23 points and Pat Bonjean 20 for the losers, now 3-4, while Gillenwater poured in 25 points for the winners.

Undisputed Title Is Finally Settled

NEW YORK (AP)—Joe Frazier dropped Jimmy Ellis twice and stopped him in the fifth round Monday night to win the undisputed world heavyweight boxing championship — unless Cassius Clay comes back.

The end came with Ellis, the World Boxing Association champion, sitting in his corner after taking a savage beating from Frazier in the showdown battle for the world title.

As the bell rang for the fifth round it went into the books as a fifth round knockout.

Ellis, an underdog at odds from 6-1 to 4-1, landed his right hand punches early but Frazier kept marching through and banging away with both hands to the head and body. The bout almost ended in the fourth with Ellis flat on his back and the count up to five when the bell sounded. Referee Tony Perez continued his count under New York rules and it reached nine before a dazed Ellis was able to get off the deck and wander to his corner.

Frazier, 205, came out smoking as he always does, ran through the fire of Ellis' bid for an early knockout and then just climbed all over him with constant pressure in the old Hammerin' Henry Armstrong style.

Ellis, heaviest in his career at 201 pounds, was holding on for dear life in the third while Frazier punished him with that solid left hook to the head and body. Still, Ellis fought his way out of his corner in one last spurt at the end of the third.

The fourth was all Frazier as the stocky Philadelphia slugger grunting with every punch drove his man around the ring. "I've tried to be the best fighter in the world," Frazier said afterwards.

"I think in a year or two, I might turn it in and find something else to do."

He said Ellis' fast start in the first round "didn't bother me at all because I hit him with a jab and I knew he couldn't stand up."

Frazier talked to Ellis several times in the ring. What did he say?

"I told him, you can't hit, sissy; I took your best right hand. You ain't got nothing."

A near sellout crowd of 18,000

while Frazier swarmed all over the Louisville boxer and pinned him in his own corner to absorb heavy punishment.

Ellis finally went down from a left-right combination and the effects of the steady barrage by the relentless Frazier. He barely got up at nine.

Sensing the kill, Frazier came at him again with both guns smoking. A left hook to the head dropped Ellis flat on his back. As referee Perez got up to five in the count the bell rang. He continued to nine and Ellis just barely did get up.

If Clay, who had picked Ellis, his old sparring partner to win, decides to come back despite his statements to the contrary, he may have all he wants in Frazier, the 26-year-old Olympic champ of 1964 who now has won all of his 25 pro fights.

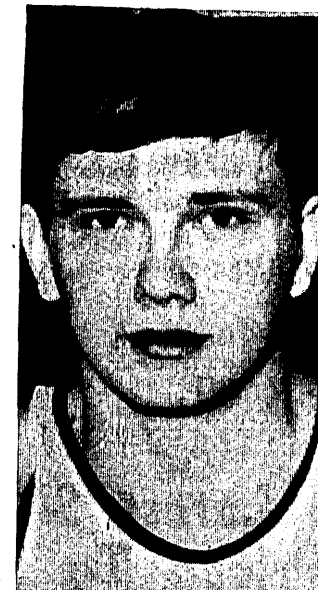

This was his 22nd knockout and his fifth successful defense of the six-state title he won by beating Buster Mathis in 1968.

Ellis, beaten five times as a middleweight early in his career, had won 12 in a row as a heavyweight. He never had been stopped and had been down only once in a middleweight scrap with Rubin Carter.

In addition to the big crowd in Madison Square Garden, many more watched at some 120 locations on closed circuit television and also live television beamed to foreign nations.

Each fighter had been guaranteed $150,000 against 30 percent of all the receipts, including the TV extras, but it appeared they would each wind up with at least $300,000.

The first was the only round given to Ellis by the three officials. The AP card also was 3-1 in favor of Frazier. Judges Jack Gordon and Tony Castellano and referee Perez also gave Ellis only the first round.

Prep Spotlight

Today's prep spotlight centers on two seniors and a pair of juniors, all seeing varsity action for at least the second season.

Jerry Schmitz, a 5-10 senior forward, was a regular for Bluffs last season. Schmitz is averaging 11.3 points per game to date.

Brad Baird, a 6-0 senior, is the quarterback of Winchester's offense this season. Besides running the offense, Baird can also score as witnessed by seven games in double figures this season, including 20 against Brown County.

Chuck Barrett, a 6-1 junior, is one of Chandlerville's top rebounders this season and packs a 13.0 per game scoring average. Barrett has a season's high of 25 points against Greenfield.

Ralph Homon, a rugged 6-2 junior forward, is one of ISD's strongest rebounders this season and has shown scoring potential. Homon has a season's high of 29 points against Pleasant Hill.

Business — Market Wrapup

Business Mirror

By JOHN CUNIFF
NEW YORK (AP) — It is hard to say with whom the blame rests, but the evidence cannot be ignored: The stock brokerage business is in a bad way financially, worse off than most people suspect.

In the first six months of 1969 four of every 10 members of the N.Y. Stock Exchange lost money on commission business. Thirteen firms lost more than $1 million each. And the cumulative loss totaled $58 million.

With evidence such as this, the NYSE now wishes to raise commissions on small orders, claiming that much of the red ink results from handling the 30-and 40-share orders of millions of ordinary Americans.

These are the orders, you'll remember, which were so earnestly sought 10 years ago in advertisements that even called upon one's patriotism: "Own a Share in America," and "Participate in People's Capitalism."

The irony of the proposed rate structure is that it seeks commission increases for handling these small orders in the name of people's capitalism. But won't higher commissions drive away the small investor? No, they say, it will mean a better deal for him.

It is now the awesome job of the NYSE to convince the small investor that it is he, in part, who is responsible for the financial difficulties of these brokers, who just two years ago handed out huge Christmas bonuses.

It is a job for the exchange logicians to tell the small investor that the way to happier days for both him and the brokers is to raise the commissions to pay for services while reducing the fees paid by million-dollar customers.

On a 30-share order of a $40 stock, which is close to an average price on the Big Board, the new schedule calls for a commission of $26.20 instead of $17. The new fee would be 2.18 per cent of the order's value.

On a 100,000 share order for the same stock, worth $4 million, the commission would drop from $23,160 to $16,790, or only 0.42 per cent of the order's value, the reduction representing a volume discount.

But how is this going to help the small investor? The argument is that more and more companies have been ignoring him during the past year, even turning him down flat when he sought to do business, because his orders were profitless.

By raising the commissions, the NYSE argues, brokers will be encouraged to seek out small orders once more instead of limiting their solicitations to the mutual and pension funds, bank trust, endowments and life insurers.

Fully 50 per cent of dollar volume on some days is now done by institutions. Often prices must be set, rather than arrived at by asking-bidding in the typical fashion of an auction market, which the stock exchange is.

Should this trend continue, the small investor might be forced to buy mutual funds instead of investing directly; the liquidity of the market might dry up; people's capitalism might turn into an oligarchy.

The Little Guy Scores In Market Slump?

By CARLTON SMITH and RICHARD PUTNAM PRATT
It appears that, for once, the amateurs and the little fellows have been doing something right. In this period of gloom, occasioned by one of the worst market slumps in years, one large group of them, at least, has been doing the smart thing.

This is contrary to all the rules. It is written in the gospel as received on Wall Street that the little guy is always wrong. Not sometimes, or usually, but always. There are hard and fast rules based on this. For example, the odd-lot ratio.

Since "the public," as you are known in the Street, generally buys stock in "odd lots" of less than 100 shares at a clip, you can tell how the public feels about the market by watching the figure, published daily, which shows how much of the day's trading consisted of odd-lot sales. When the ratio is increasing, indicating that small investors are in a buying mood, then the market is headed down, says the rule—simply because "the public" has to be wrong.

The professionals, during the disastrous year of 1969, of course, were selling. The absence of buyers is what drives prices down to levels such as we now have—the lowest in six years. And, sure enough, the public has been acting as contrarian as a mule. But, in one respect, at least, a smart mule.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market, for the third straight session, wandered aimlessly in desultory trading Monday.

At the close, the averages had hardly budged from their starting points, and advances and declines on the New York Stock Exchange were a virtual stand-off.

While Wall Street analysts lamented the lack of developments to pull the market out of its rut, they said it was heartening that the market was standing firm only a few rungs above its lowest level of the year.

The market is likely to wallow in a narrow range until some spark, such as positive moves in regard to the tight-money policy and the Vietnam war, ignites it, Wall Streeters say.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials eked out a gain of 0.40 to 753.70. The Associated Press 60-stock average edged up .5 to 263.2 with industrials up .8, rails up .2 and utilities up .1.

The New York Stock Exchange index of some 1,200 common stocks dipped 0.04 to 48.45. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index eased 0.7 to 86.47.

Advances included ahead of 1,575 issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange. New 1969-70 lows swamped new highs by 99 to 41.

Volume tumbled to 9.78 million shares from 11.06 million on Friday.

The spread was tight among the 20 most active Big Board issues with 10 declines, 9 advances and 1 unchanged.

Ethyl, off 1 to 15¢ on total volume of 223,000 shares, including a block of 171,400 shares, was the most active.

Ward Foods, with blocks of 64,700 and 39,500 shares, was high among the volume leaders, closing off ¼ to 17½¢.

American Telephone, on unusually large volume of 144,600 shares for that issue, gained ¼ to 49¢.

Closing prices among the most-active Big Board issues included Compaq Sciences, off 1½ to 22½¢; Mesa Petroleum, up 1 to 47¢; Polaroid, up 1½ to 95¢; American Motors, up ½ to 10¢; Northwest Industries, up ¼ to 15½¢.

The American Stock Exchange index dipped .05 to 25.56. Of 1,031 issues traded, 435 declined, and 389 advanced. Volume rose to 3.47 million shares from 3.21 million on Friday.

Parvint-Dohmann traded on the American Stock Exchange for the first time since it was suspended last Oct. 13. The issue closed with a loss of 33½ to 35½¢.

Balance Of Payments Deficit $6.99 Billion

By MARTHA COLE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States reported Monday a deficit of $6.99 billion in its balance of payments for 1969, the worst year on record.

Department of Commerce figures showed, however, a surplus of $1.1 billion, seasonally adjusted, for the fourth quarter of 1969.

The 1969 deficit, meaning that much more money flowed out of the country than came in, represents a $7.2 billion deterioration from 1968, which showed a surplus of $168 million.

All figures are adjusted for predictable seasonal changes and are for the liquidity balance, which takes account of changes in all U.S. transactions overseas.

The official balance, which covers only transactions with other governments and central banks, showed a $1.3 billion surplus in the last quarter of 1969 and a surplus of $2.78 billion for the year, a $1.1 billion improvement over 1968.

Wheat Futures Advance Again

CHICAGO (AP) — Wheat futures bulled ahead again on the Chicago Board of Trade Monday, advancing 2½ cents a bushel to set seasonal highs in the first two options.

Nearly all commodity futures on the exchange advanced. Trade was fairly active, but most of it was concentrated in the soybean complex and in the wheat pit.

The rise in wheat futures represented a move of nearly 10 cents a bushel in the last two weeks. Most of the buying was influenced by reports of needed moisture where winter wheat is grown, an extended weather forecast indicating only normal precipitation could be expected, a tight stocks situation at Chicago and a fairly good export movement over the weekend.

At the close, wheat ¾ to 2½ cents a bushel higher, March 1.52½; corn was ¾ to ½ higher, 1¼ higher, March 60½ cents; rye was ½ lower to ¼ higher, March 1.17½; and soybeans were ¼ to 2 cents higher, March 2.54½.

Resolution Contrary To Lahey's Statement

While Mayor Dan Lahey and Urban Renewal Director John Pine remained at odds, the city council, over one negative vote, approved a resolution reaffirming its endorsement of Urban Renewal's Project One.

Alderman Cornell Cane said the resolution, covering the town square project, was introduced to clarify the council's position in passing two documents during its February 2 meeting.

Describing the need for clarification, the alderman was apparently referring to a public statement by Mayor Lahey that those resolutions obligated the Sewer and Water Departments for $500,000.

The resolution approved last night said "...the City Council did not by its unanimous passage of the two resolutions on February 2, 1970, commit the Water and Sewer Departments to an expenditure of $500,000 under the above proposed Urban Renewal Project."

Mention of $500,000 in the resolution concerned non-cash credits which would be met over the next four years in improvements to city departments and facilities.

Mayor Lahey implied that the aldermen in passing the lengthy resolution during the February 2 meeting didn't know what they were approving.

Pine remarked that "no one bothered asking" for the document before that meeting, including anyone from the mayor's office. He continued to explain there was nothing in the resolution which obligated any city department to $500,000, but that the figure refers only to non-cash credits.

Saying that two public meetings have been held to hear questions and criticisms on the project, Pine asked: "Why when we come to any major part of the project do we start hearing these questions on Urban Renewal theory again?"

Projected figures in the document drew some criticism during the discussion. Alderman Rex Hazelrigg, asking the sources of the figures for non-cash credits, said that although he is a member of the Urban Renewal Committee, he "could never get the figures except over a cup of coffee."

He asked if the figures were documented or were "coffee talk again."

The Urban Renewal director said the figures came from the application approved by the council in January 1968. He told the council that the figures have been available to whoever wants to see them.

One member of the audience asked Pine how non-cash credits could be projected for departments over the next four years.

Pine illustrated by saying that more than $1 million is expected to be returned to the city in motor fuel taxes in the next four years. Of that amount, he said, about $153,000 is being sought in non-cash credit improvements.

In other council procedure, a resolution authorizing the purchase of Morgan County Fair ground property for road purposes was approved. The acquisition would be for an extension of Westgate Ave. Bids could be accepted within the next few weeks according to Alderman Jimmie Fernandes, Municipal Services Committee chairman.

A petition by Dr. Ward Dunstun to change the zoning classification for a 45-acre tract from residential to business was passed on to the Plans Commission. The land is proposed to be used for a mobile home park. The commission has announced a public hearing on the proposal for March 4 at 7:30 p.m.

Alderman Dale Brown, chairman of the Public Protection Committee, asked the council to consider recruitment of personnel for the police and fire departments from outside the city.

Police Chief Charles Runkel explained that too few applications have been received for a current opening in his department. Some of the applicants for the post do not meet the minimum standards.

He pointed out that a training period for applicants before they can join the force costs more than $400. Should an applicant fail the course, the city has lost the money and the man.

Brown and Chief Runkel said if allowances are made for outside recruitment, the necessary ordinance should contain the stipulation that the recruit move to the city within six months.

The council approved a resolution directing investment of 1966 Electric Construction funds of $117,000 in U.S. Treasury bonds.

A resolution was also accepted to direct investment of $23,000 in motor fuel tax funds which are due Sept. 30.

Early Morning Blaze Destroys Nightspot

BEARDSTOWN — An early morning fire Monday destroyed the landmark nightspot known as the Mallard Inn a mile east of Beardstown on Illinois 125.

Large quantities of liquor and all furnishings and equipment were lost—firemen said the estimate may be as high as $100,000 but Charles Kirchner, owner and operator of the off-robbed Inn, could not be contacted. It was not immediately known how much insurance was carried.

The fire was reported shortly after 2 a.m. and Chief Dick Harmon immediately called for help upon arrival at the scene. The fire departments of four nearby towns, Chapin, Virginia, Rushville and Mt. Sterling, answered the call, but were handicapped by lack of water.

Kirchner, who closed the place about midnight, was taken to Schmitt hospital when it was feared that shock might have brought on a heart attack. He was released after receiving emergency treatment for shock.

The blaze was reportedly discovered by a passing truck driver and was well underway when firemen arrived. Firemen controlled the blaze on arrival, but when they went after more water the fire flared out of control, and the place burned to the ground.

The Mallard Inn had been burglarized frequently in the past few years—on the last occasion a large quantity of whiskey was taken, but it was recovered in Springfield. Two men are awaiting trial on that charge.

Kirchner had been advertising the place for sale. The usual closing time is later, but he closed up about midnight for lack of customers, firemen stated.

One fireman disagreed with a report the blaze started from the furnace. He thought the fire originated in the kitchen. Firefighters remained on the scene until 5 a.m.

Births
Mr. and Mrs. John P. Rich of 12 Clover Drive became parents of a son at 4:43 a.m. Sunday at Passavant hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Gregory of Winchester became parents of a son at 10:58 a.m. Sunday at Passavant hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Renner of Winchester became parents of a son at 3:20 p.m. Sunday at Passavant hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pearson of 1026 South East street became parents of a daughter at 3:48 p.m. Sunday at Passavant hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. William Martin of 602 Sandusky street became parents of a son at 5:25 p.m. Sunday.

Dr. and Mrs. E. C. Bone have learned of the birth of their first grandchild, born Sunday to Mr. and Mrs. J. David Bone of St. Petersburg, Florida; a daughter, named Gratia. Mr. Bone is a law student at Stetson University in Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Retherford of Greenfield became parents of a son at 1:10 a.m. Sunday at Passavant hospital.

Three Accidents Monday Evening
City police handled three accidents in the city shortly after 5 p.m. Monday.

The first occurred at 5:10 p.m. in the 100 block of East Morton. Linda Floreth, 17, of 1832 Mound, said she started to pass a vehicle when she drove into the path of a car driven by Cleo Taylor, 39, of Springfield.

At 5:20 police were called to the 800 block of South Main where cars driven by Susan Welch, 20, of 841 West Walnut, and Warren R. Lewis, 20, of Route Two, were involved in a rear-end collision.

Mrs. Welch said she thought traffic had started moving and her auto struck the Lewis car from behind.

The drivers of two cars which collided at the Lincoln Square Shopping center at 5:40 p.m. claimed a snow pile obstructed their view.
